

“Shifting Perspectives”

This Message is brought to you from the “Teachers of Love” through a Messenger named Moriah

‘Humans have long held certain beliefs about the nature of reality. Your religions, even your superstitions, reflect those beliefs. Seeing humans as the center of the “universe”, with all other life in subservience, has led to the establishment of what you call your “way of life”. We shall explain.

When you perceive yourself as superior to all other beings, you create belief systems that lock that perception into place. You establish a value to all other life forms. If the life form becomes a family pet, it has a high value. If it exists in the wild, it has another value. If it is deemed by your scientific understanding to have intelligence, it has yet another. If it has use for clothing or food, it has another. In other words, all other life forms are assigned value based upon your ladder of superiority. It is a convenient perspective and, for the most part, has served humanity well. Cultural differences, racial differences, and religious differences are also part of that model. In other words, if you are of one culture, other cultures are deemed of less value. The same is true of race and religion. That is why there are deep divisions, and years of history of wars, that have manifest. The way to stop war is to view everyone as equal. Until you are able to view others as necessary and worthy, and until you need to come together in united purpose, wars and power shifts will continue.

As an organization of those who, for the most part, believe there is a visiting extraterrestrial presence, you are possibly the most open to the idea of humanity as one of many races in a universe of universes. While you may say that you believe this, it is still not truly in your experience to act upon this principle. You continue for most of your waking time, absorbed in what you call “day-to-day”—your work, family, errands, or hobbies. You educate your children with your beliefs and become very upset if they grow to ascribe to other values. In other words, humans continue to be most tribal. You say, “In our house, we...In our church, we...In our town, we...In our country, we...”. When something is described as “our”, it has already distinguished itself as different from something else. That is neither right nor wrong, it is simply our description of human behavior.

Now, humanity is on a brink. The old way of perceiving the world has many challenges. Even your scientific thought is challenged daily. What was believed yesterday as truth, may no longer be considered true today. For example, your beliefs in the area of physics have had many challenges and resulting changes. What was considered absolute is constantly being redefined. Consider your concepts around energy and matter, and you will understand. Energy healing is once again coming into use in the Western part of your world where once matter was thought to be stable and unchanging. Energy is in all things and is constantly moving. Therefore change is. Everything is energy. That is why your concept of death is changing as more people view death as simply transition to another energy frequency.

Humans have long fought religious wars. These wars are based upon religious beliefs, which are human perceptions drawn together in such a way as to attempt to organize a concept of reality. People follow religions in order to feel safe in what otherwise might feel like an unpredictable world. Your great leaders arrived at times in human history when faith was being challenged, and love energy was very low. Humans thrive on love energy. It causes them to protect and nurture their children. It helps them to find purpose in life. It causes them to sacrifice, and in sacrificing for a cause, they “find” their meaning in life. Humans search for meaning in their concept of reality. That is why your current religions are finding that they must begin to change and shift, or become irrelevant. Humans cannot tolerate two opposing concepts of reality simultaneously, and change in perception is imminent and growing.

Many of your spiritual leaders refer to a Shift. They believe that there is a shift for humanity as the vibrations or frequencies change. They believe that those who can change will become part of a higher frequency, leaving behind those who cannot or will not change. To some degree this is most accurate. However, it is only part of what is actually occurring.

The time has come for races other-than-human to join with humans. Already, some of you are aware of changes. Your science fiction and media are full of this fantasy that is built to some degree upon reality. In other words, your Experiencers have seen these beings and some have interacted with them. Some of your people have seen flying objects that cannot be identified within your scope of understanding. Some people have seen both. Some have had encounters that they do not yet recognize as it has been hidden within their unconscious. Others have been able to remember, or to recover memories. This leads many thinking humans to open to the possibility that something that does not fit within their concept of reality is occurring. Indeed, that is correct. You are trying to merge what is not understood with what is. You are taking the risks always experienced by those on the cusp of new understanding and knowledge. Some of you are risking your reputations and your lives. Yet, you proceed because you know that humanity has a destiny to join with these other beings. You know something is happening and you conjecture as to why.

It is your conjecturing that is causing you difficulty, and that is why We have come at this time to speak to you. We speak through a “Messenger named Moriah”. You know her as Sue. She receives and delivers Our Messages, as it is her sacred promise to do so. We shall explain.

When humanity is going through a momentous challenge, those with a higher perspective called High Spiritual Teachers are sent to assist. We, the Teachers of Love, have been sent to assist in the evolution that is occurring. That evolution is the bringing together of human and non-human life forms. It is our desire for humans to maintain human freedom while this occurs.

Your history of exploration of new lands led to some countries or races taking power from others. Many died in the struggles to maintain power and control. Human freedom was often lost from one group to another. Many times some humans enslaved others. Many were tortured and died. Many died to maintain freedom for themselves and their loved ones. There have been, and continue to be, many vicious struggles you call war. However, humans must now unite in order to preserve human freedom.

Your challenge is to prepare yourself and others for maintaining human freedom in the face of this evolutionary change. Humanity became of particular interest to other non-humans when you began to explore space. You pollute your own environment, and now you are polluting space! It is not being viewed with approval. You are becoming endangered because you are refusing to protect your beautiful planet, and others are taking note. They do not intend to allow you to destroy planet earth, and are taking steps to prevent this occurrence.

Those who come will not understand human compassion, love, and freedom. They will, in most cases, seek to dominate you and use you for their purposes. You cannot withstand their coming by force alone. Instead, you will find that they are unable to tolerate human empathy, and love energy, and may leave to avoid this energy.

Therefore, your best protection is to meditate, work at understanding your differences, and spend time in the energy of Love as you reflect. Be open to new understandings as they are revealed to you. Be open to Our words as We provide leadership through the evolution that is occurring.
